325 Escape When Fire Hits Hotel

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A dropped match in a pile of newspapers started a fierce fire today that destroyed a converted seven-story hotel occupied by 325 elderly men and women. All were reported evacuated safely.
The flames, fanned by strong winds in 10-degree temperature, roared through the 248-room
Normandie Retirement Club with crackling violence, tumbling down brick and stone walls and hurling fiery embers to neighboring buildings.
Nine alarms were sounded, bringing about 500 firemen and 75 pieces of fire equipment to the scene and making a shambles of morning traffic bound for center city.
Fire Marshal John Doyle said
the fire started in the second floor room of John Lucy, 77, and was not reported immediately as he sought unsuccessfully to douse the flames by pouring cups of water on it.
The fire marshal said Lucy, unable to sleep, sat in an easy chair by the window and decided to smoke a cigarette. "The match fell from his hand," said Doyle, "and ignited the papers.
He apparently tried to stamp it out and failed, then went to the bathroom for a cup of water, making a few trips before he found the flames were out of his control."
Two policemen driving by noticed smoke coming out the window and notified the night clerk, who sounded the alarm.
Occupants were hastily awakened, and they were assisted down fire escapes, into elevators, and to the nearby Divine Tracy Hotel and a University of Pennsylvania nursing school dormitory across the street.
Some also were taken in buses commandeered by police to a National Guard armory a few blocks away.
When sparks seemed to ignite the Tracy, firemen ordered that building evacuated and turned their hoses on it.

Pine Bluff Man to Run for Office

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) —
Chancellor Lawrence E. Dawson, 44, of Pine Bluff, a former municipal judge and state legislator, announced Saturday that he would be a candidate for the Arkansas Supreme Court.
Dawson said he would seek the Democratic nomination for the Supreme Court seat that will be vacated by the retirement of Associate Justice Paul Ward.
"I firmly believe — and my record as a judge reflects that I have put this belief into practice — that a judge's eyes should be completely blind to the social, economic or political position of all litigants; that the scales of justice should be evenly balanced as to all, without regard to their station in life, and that every case should be decided solely on the facts and the law," Dawson said.
Ward's position is one of two to be filled by next year. Chief Justice Carlton Harris also is up for re-election, but he hasn't announced his plans.
Two other Democrats already have announced that they will make the race for Ward's seat.
They are Chancellor Thomas F.
Buck of Fayetteville and former Associate Justice Frank Holt, who resigned in 1966 to seek the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.
Dawson has served as chancery and probate judge of the 4th Chancery District for nine years.
A native of Buena Vista (Omaha County), Dawson attended Magnolia A&M College (now Southern State) and was graduated from the University of Arkansas Law School in 1948.

Three Killed on Arkansas Highways

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Three persons died on the Arkansas highways during the weekend period, all in a two-vehicle crash Saturday night near Jacksonville.
State Police identified the victims as Airman 1C Bruce R.
Keller, 20, of Great Neck, N.Y.; Airman 1C Mandel Laks, 20, of Detroit, Mich.; and Francis Nina Cockerman, 17, daughter of Mr.
and Mrs. H. M. Cockerman of Jacksonville.
Authorities said Keller was the driver of a car which hit a tractor-trailer rig on U.S. 67, about 1 1/2 miles south of Jacksonville. Officers identified the driver of the rig as Eddie Mc-Carthy, 42, of Tulsa, Okla.
McCarthy wasn't injured.

CAMBRIDGE, N.Y. (AP) —
John Sherin of Greenwich, N.Y., said he thought the ice on Hedges Lake near this northern New York village was thick enough for a landing.
Sherin brought down his single-engine, ski-equipped plane onto the ice, then climbed out and walked toward shore. He and his passenger looked back to see the plane sink slowly to its wing-mounts.

Johnson and Israeli Leader Talk

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer
STONEWALL, Tex. (AP) —
President Johnson and Israeli Prime Minister Levi Eshkol toured the placid LBJ Ranch and talked of peace in the Middle East and the world Sunday.
With the Hebrew word "shalom"—peace—Johnson started things off.
"We will try to extend the peace that is in our hearts to all men who are willing to share our partnership of good faith and good purpose," the President said in an airport welcome for Eshkol at Randolph Air Force Base, some 60 miles south of the ranch.
The 72-year-old Israeli leader said peace was his "central concern," too. Eshkol noted that it was in his area of the world in ancient days that "men first expressed a striving for peace on earth."
"I will never give up hope that this will come to pass. We in our country are working toward this end," Eshkol declared.
And Johnson added his hope that "you find peace which all Americans are proud to seek with you."
Amid the emphasis on peace,
the Israelis were expected to make a plea for U.S. arms, including 50 F4 phantom jet planes they say are needed to balance a Soviet buildup of arms to Arab nations.
The 22-hour overnight visit was informal and private, except for the arrival at Randolph, where about 1,000 persons turned out in 37 degree weather and winds gusting up to 23 miles an hour.
President and Mrs. Johnson and Premier and Mrs. Eshkol went by helicopter to the ranch where Johnson wasted no time getting his visitor out to see his acres along the Pedernales River.
He drove one station wagon
for a tour amid the oak trees and the pastures where deer and white-faced Hereford graze.
Mrs. Johnson, in another station wagon, drove the ladies to tea at the ranch house.
The two leaders posed for photographers and launched their talks in the small yellow and beige-decorated den of the white stone and frame ranch house.
A family dinner, featuring "supreme of pheasant" and rice, was served at two big round tables. Gifts were exchanged and Eshkol invited the Johnsons to come to visit Israel sometime soon.
In an exchange of dinner toasts—again with a peace theme—Johnson said that America's peacemakers had a busy year in 1967—in the Middle East, Cyprus and Vietnam. The President said they found a stubborn truth confirmed:
"Making peace is punishing work. It demands enormous courage, flexibility and imagi-

Says Nixon Is Probably the Favorite

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., says Richard M. Nixon is probably the favorite presidential prospective of Republican professionals but New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller would attract more of the independent and Democratic votes needed for a White House drive.
Percy said Sunday Republican officials have known and worked with Nixon and "for better or for worse, he has been a solid Republican."
But, Percy added, the GOP presidential nominee won't be able to win the White House with Republican votes.
"I think it is the general consensus now, even among many professional Republicans," that Mr. Rockefeller, if he could hold together the Republican party, would probably have the best chance to attract independents and Democrats," Percy said.
"He has the greatest appeal to them today but that is not what might happen in August at the convention."
As for himself, Percy said again he doesn't plan to be a candidate other than as a favorite son from Illinois.
Percy appeared on NBC's
"Meet the Press."

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-
Minn., like Percy an opponent of the administration's Vietnam war policy, said some antiwar senators aren't endorsing his announced presidential candidacy because they expect to lose.
"I don't think that's the kind of excuse that really stands up very well," he said.
McCarthy plans to enter several Democratic primaries against President Johnson but there have been indications he
f. Kennedy, D-N.Y., hasn't expressed support for him.
McCarthy said he doesn't expect antiwar senator to get re-election this year to get involved in choosing between him and Johnson. But he added that "so far as senators who have supported the position I take and who are not running, there is a little bit more of a burden upon them to take a stand."
Kennedy is not up for re-election this year. He has opposed Johnson's war policy but also has said he will support the President for another term.
nation. It is ill-served by hasty slogans or half-solutions."
Johnson promised it is the intention of the United States to pursue and find peace in the Middle East and throughout the world.
Eshkol said he felt Johnson had shown him warm friendship and also demonstrated a deep belief that "in terms of rights and duties all people are equal."
That they have equal right to be themselves and to be left in peace.
"In the days of peril I thought often of your friendship," Esh-kol told the President, in an apparent reference to the Israeli-Arab war last June.
The visiting Israeli leader, who is in this country on a nine-day tour, said Texas reminded him very much of parts of his own country.

Has Praise for Doctor Barnard

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)
— Dr. Owen Wengensteen, who trained them, says Dr. Norman E. Shumway and Dr. Christiaan
Barnard, the heart transplant surgeons, had "tremendous ability and a lot of originality."
Dr. Wengensteen, 70, who headed the department of surgery at the University of Minnesota for 37 1/2 years, said, however, that his role in their development was that of a "sideline cheerleader."
He said he worked to create an atmosphere where the students could develop freely.
"A lot of people came here because we were interested in research," said Wengensteen, now professor emeritus. "We weren't stereotyped. We had, rally, no restrictive rules, so they could go far afield in their work."

Shumway headed the surgical team at Stanford University which Saturday transplanted
the heart of a 43-year-old housewife into the chest of Mike Kasperak, 54, and is credited with developing the technique now used in heart transplants.
Barnard headed the team in Cape Town, South Africa, that made the world's first and third human heart transplants.
Shumway did his internship at Minnesota in 1949-50, and then undertook his advanced surgical training and earned a Ph.D. degree. He left Minnesota in 1958 to go to the Stanford University medical school, where he now heads the division of cardiovascular surgery.
Barnard received heart surgery training at Minnesota from 1956 until 1958.

"Very good boys," is the way
the two are remembered by Wengensteen.
The retired professor recalled
Sunday that Shumway was a
"very knowledgeable fellow, broadly trained and very ar-
"worked with great intensity."

Wengensteen said Shumway did much work with animals to perfect the technique he used Saturday.

Gathings Seat Sought by Another

OSCEOLA, Ark. (AP) — Bill
Alexander, 34, of Osceola, an attorney, became the fourth person Saturday to announce as a candidate for the 1st District congressional seat that will be left vacant next year by the retirement of Rep. E. C. "Took" Gathings, D-Ark.
Alexander said he would be in Little Rock today to pay his $750 filing fee at the state Democratic party headquarters and file his corrupt practices pledge with Secretary of State Kelly Bryant.
Only one other candidate, Dr.
Ralph R. Ratton, a Paragould dentist, has paid his fee and filed his pledge. Others who have announced for the race are former Chancellor Lee Ward of Jonesboro and Jack D.
Files of Hunter (Woodruff County), a former aide to Sen. J.
William Fulbright, D-Ark.
Gathings is completing his 15th term.
Alexander, a native of Osceola, attended the University of Arkansas and Southwestern University of Memphis. He received his law degree from Vanderbilt University.

Russia and Cuba Not in Harmony

HAVANA (AP) — The Soviet Union sent a team of economic experts to Havana last November at Fidel Castro's request to try to help straighten out Cuba's economy, informed European Communists in Havana report.
The sources said the Russian team's unannounced visit was to review Cuban economic plans for the next three years. They added that the Cuban-Soviet trade agreement for this year, which is part of the three-year plan, has not yet been signed, but this is expected later this month.
The Russian economic mission was a result of talks between the Cuban prime minister and Soviet Premier Alexei N.
Kosygin last June, it was said.
The same sources also reported that the Russians feel Castro's order last Tuesday to ration gasoline for private cars was unnecessary and that the Cubans have misused Soviet-supplied petroleum.
The Soviets reportedly feel that the savings from the gas ration will not be sufficient to offset adverse publicity.
The sources reported, however, that the Soviets expect to send Cuba 155,000 additional metric tons of crude oil this year, an increase of about 4 percent.
Castro reportedly suggested that the Russian economic team come to Cuba earlier, but Kosygin replied it would be difficult before the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution on Nov. 7.
The sources said Cuba's three-year plan has been worked on by both Castro and Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos but gave no details.
Russia is believed supplying the Castro government with about $400 million worth of non-military aid annually.
According to the sources, the

In Johannesburg, meanwhile, good progress was reported in another pioneering surgical feat, the separation of Siamese twins at the forehead. The twins
— 3-month-old girls born two weeks prematurely — were taken off the danger list today at the Johannesburg Children's Hospital and a bulletin said they
"continue to make good progress."
The twins, Catherine and Shirley O'Hare, were separated Saturday in a five-hour operation.
The hospital said they "spent a comfortable and restful night and are now on full normal feeds. Both children are moving their heads and reacting in a normal manner."
It added that "they cry lustily when they are hungry and now behave in the usual manner of children their age."
If the girls survive, it is believed the operation will be recorded as the first in which Siamese twins joined at the forehead have been successfully separated.
Russians have no argument with Castro's plan to tighten gasoline control on government vehicles. But the Soviets were said to be against gasoline rationing for private cars, which they estimate number only 30,000 out of a total of 150,000 nonmilitary vehicles. These vehicles are said to account for less than 20 per cent of national petroleum consumption. One theory is that Castro could hardly have ordered gas rationing for government vehicles without first limiting consumption for private cars, which are mostly owned by people the government classes as bourgeois.
Russia provides 99 per cent of Cuba's petroleum. The sources said Russia delivered 3.7 million metric tons in 1963, 3.4 million in 1964, 3.5 million in 1965, 3.0 million in 1966 and 3.845 million last year.

DANCING SHOE ON OTHER FOOT

Dear Helen: We went to my husband's office Christmas party. The band was great, food good, but I sure didn't enjoy myself.

After scrambling to buy a new dress and spending hours in the beauty shop, I ended up a "wall flower" again, while my husband flirted from flower to flower, giving all the other wives the pleasure of his company on the dance floor. Some of the husbands asked me, but still I sat more than I danced.

Helen, six years ago when we married, my husband couldn't get across the floor without tripping himself. I taught that man everything about dancing, from waltzes to the watusi. At that time I really preferred other partners, but now he's my favorite. And now—he says I can't dance correctly.

Any suggestions?—MRS. B.

Dear Mrs. B.: One question: Back in your husband's four-footed days, did you leave him stranded while you danced with those "preferred partners?" If so, you're learning how the shoe feels on the other foot.

Another question: Do you tend to lead? A teacher often does, especially when the pupil is her husband.

Even if the answers are "Yes," your husband won't win a gold cup for etiquette—and he may be winning the title of "show-off" among the men. Other males usually resent a nimble-footed flower-flitter. That might be the reason they don't ask YOU to dance.—H.

Dear Helen: I have been doing housework at a home here for three years, and feel I should have a raise. These people have plenty of money and are well pleased with my work. Others earn more than the $1.50 an hour they pay me. They're nice to me otherwise, but how do I ask for a raise?—HARDWORKING GIRL workers are as scarce as wood ranges these days, so that shouldn't be hard—and then tell your present employers you'd rather stay on with them, but you "just can't afford to."—H.

P.S. I'll wager they've had several "cost of living" raises in three years. If they can't share, they don't deserve your loyalty.—H.

Dear Helen: You said recently that when you receive a letter signed "Mary Jones" with no clue as to whether the writer is married or single, you address her as "Dear Mrs. Jones." Wrong! A woman is "Miss" unless she states otherwise.—ETIQUETTE OBSERVING SECRETARY

Dear Observing: You get an "A" for etiquette, but an "F" for observing. Please re-read my column, if you still have it. I suggested Miss-Mrs. Jones be addressed as "Dear Ms. Jones" to cover both possibilities.—H.

Dear Ms. Bottel: You will want to know that the use of "Ms." has been recommended in secretarial training books for some years. I quote from the Standard Handbook for Secretaries: "If in doubt about 'Miss' or 'Mrs.' use 'Miss' or 'Ms.'" (meaning either "Miss" or "Mrs.") CLAUDIA GARVEY, MCGRAW-HILL BOOK COMPANY.

Dear Ms. Garvey: Thank you for the pointer...But why don't more secretaries swing to "Ms.?"—H.

The Age of Clothes Differ Some

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — Only a catty female judges the age of another woman, but the age of her clothes are fair game.

By the close Sunday night of the style previews held for fashion editors by the New York Couture Group the rules were well established for scoring at a glance the fashion age of a lady's costume.

Try this test:

1. Does the skirt swing? Give the girl a plus for gathers, gores, pleats—boxed, knife and fan—and give her nowhereville for the shift or sheath.
2. Are her knees rosy? Then she has hiked her hemline above the knees for daytime. She's a couriant, even though she may be a mild or a maxi hemline advocate, she won't as yet wear these lengths until after the sun goes down this year.
3. Does she have a waist? Though it may be larger than it was before she began to wear tents two years ago, she has it back again, if she's fashion-conscious. Belts, sashes and tucks tell it's there.
4. Are her sleeves midlength? For shame, if she is with it, she will wear wrist length sleeves or none at all.
5. Is her head woolly as a kewpie doll's? Never mind last year's straight boyish look. Never mind the curlers at the breakfast table. She's up to date with her hair style.
6. Is her dress black? Careful, this question is tricky. Give her points if she's under 40. Subtract points if she wears black for day and is past that age. It does nothing to improve her coloring.
7. Does she wear white for night? She's an angel, from the fashion designer's point of view. Score her high.
8. Does she wear high heels and pointed toes? She should go to the bottom of the fashion class. She can redeem herself by wearing platform soles, preferably contrasted in color to the shoe itself. Or she can wear squat pumps with bright-colored sculptured heels.

Another press preview, American Designer Series, arranged by Eleanor Lambert, began Sunday and will continue through Friday.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Louis Stevenson's familiar horror story, "The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," proved to be fairly bland and much, much too long as an ABC Sunday night special.

There was this doctor, a quiet fellow dedicated to his laboratory filled with foaming beakers and caged mice. In the course of his experiments, he drinks a chemical potion. Thus he becomes the first acid head on a bad trip.

Dr. Jekyll, in contemporary jargon, freaks out and becomes Mr. Hyde. But the switching back and forth between the good doctor and the evil Hyde went on for 21 hours during which he killed so many people it became a crashing bore.

Jack Palance played the Jekyll-Hyde character with a satanic makeup in the latter role and a British accent in the former. The high point of his performance seemed to come when he twisted and contorted himself after drinking the potion that turned him into Hyde.

The story was set in Victorian London, and it was a very handsome production. But it was an old-told tale that has been better told before.

NBC's Saturday special on Dr. Christian Barnard and his historic heart surgery was timely and enlightening. In spite of the inability of the network to use much material relating to the recent heart transplant patient, Dr. Philip Blalberg.

The focus of the hour program was primarily on the South African doctor, who talked of his boyhood as the son of a missionary, and of his studies at the University of Minnesota where he did odd jobs to make ends meet.

Barnard's description, in understandable terms, of his first human heart transplant was obviously made while the patient was still alive, but it was particularly effective since he told about his own emotions during the operation. The program's difficulty was that the only operation pictures it could show was that of open heart surgery performed by Barnard and his team.

Sheriff's officers say the loot also included a box of aspirin.

Hope Defeats El Dorado Hornets

By RALPH ROUNTON
Star Sports Writer

Bouncing back from the previous night's loss with a collective team effort, the Hope Bobcats took command early in the fourth quarter and marched to a 65-57 4-AA win over the El Dorado Washington Hornets last Saturday night at Jones Field House.

Consistent shooting and good conditioning paid off for the Bobcats, who bounced back after losing to Magnolia 56-49 the night before. Nevertheless, El Dorado Washington's outside shooting ably nearly carried the Hornets to victory. Hope is now 5-5 for the year, while Washington is 6-3.

The Bobcats played good basketball from the start, jumping into a small early lead before the Hornets opened up from the outside. Washington was making costly mistakes, though, and when the buzzer sounded to end the quarter the Big Cats were leading 16-10.

That second period was nearly disastrous for the Bobcats, giving away turnover after turnover, and Washington soon took the lead. Although the Hornets were using the fast break, their guards were more content to flash down the court all alone, then stop and knock the bottom out of the net with a 25-foot jumper. This kept on for the rest of the half, at which time the Bobcats had fallen behind 32-27.

When the third quarter started, it looked as though it would be a replay of the second. The Hornets quickly jumped into a nine-point spread before Bobcat Coach Joe Austin called time out. Austin must have laid it on the line for those 45 seconds, because Hope returned a different ball club. Working for the easy shot and playing team ball, all ten Bobcats who dressed out saw a good bit of action, and all looked at their best.

Now the pendulum was swinging in the other direction, and the Bobcats' momentum carried right to the end of the quarter, with the scoreboard sacking up at 47-47. Both teams scored four quick points, but then the Bobcats came up with the turning point in the ball game.

6-5 junior Jim Singleton threw in a rebound, Richard Sallee drove for an easy basket, and Wayne Norvell went up for a lay-up on which Washington was called for goaltending. During this sequence the Hornets only managed one charity shot, and Hope had lots of hope with a 57-52 lead and two minutes left. Washington never got any closer, as the Bobcats made a couple of baskets and an assortment of free shots for the eight-point win.

Playing one of his rare full games without fouling out, Richard Sallee responded by laying in 20 points to pace the Bobcats. Larry East, after a bad night against Magnolia, came through with 13 big points, and Dwight Galloway racked up 10. With his best game, Wayne Norvell had 8, while Ricky Putman and Jim Singleton popped 5 each. To balance it out right John Henley had 4, Guard Larry Taylor for Washington threw in nine field goals, but made 15 out of 19 from the foul line to lead everybody with 33 points. James Calvin also had 14 for the Hornets.

In the junior game Washington came out with a press after leading only 25-23 at halftime, and the full court defense made the difference as the less experienced Bobkittens fell before another torrid shooting attack 50-35.

Bradley Showdown Tonight

By RALPH ROUNTON
Star Sports Writer

Another interesting week of basketball looms ahead, with the big highlight being the showdown between the Hope Lady Cats and the state's best, the Bradley Bearettles.

The action begins tonight, as the Hope Jr. Girls match forces with Kirby in the Delight Tournament at 6:30 p.m. The Kitty Cats high-scoring forward, Dee Singleton, has been suffering from the flu but will be in the game tonight. This squad has been improving constantly, and now they have a chance to show themselves off while vying for a trophy.

Then on Tuesday night the Hope Bobcats and the "B" Lizards travel to El Dorado for a pair of games. Both clubs lost to their Wildcat counterparts back in December, and will be out for revenge. The Bobcats presently have a 5-5 season mark, while the "B" Lizards stand at 3-3.

But the game many folks have been looking forward to for a long time comes up on Thursday evening, when the Senior Girls clubs from Hope and Bradley get together to renew their feud over who's the better team. The Bradley girls, holders of an 80-some odd game winning streak, have already defeated the Lady Cats three times, the latest by a 63-50 count in the finals of the OBU Invitational at Arkadelphia three weeks ago. Their big game will be preceded by a Junior Boys test at 6:30 p.m.

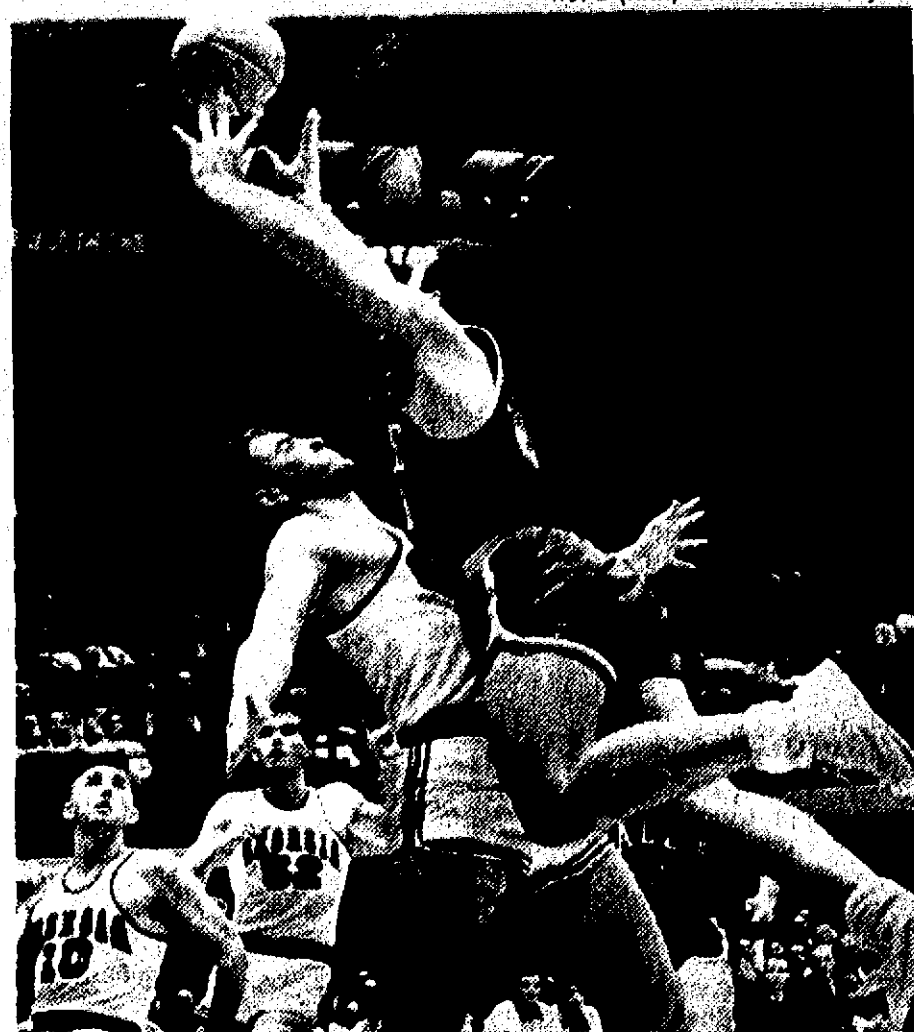

Nashville Defeats Blevins

The Nashville Scrappers whipped the Blevins Hornets 93-50 in a game played at Blevins Friday night. The Blevins Sr. Boys trailed by 13 points at half. Dixon scored 20 points, Carozza, 18 points, and McLeure hit for 14 points on the winning team. Ricky Paul led Blevins with 19 points, Wendell Hoover scored 13 and James Roberts had 11 for Blevins.

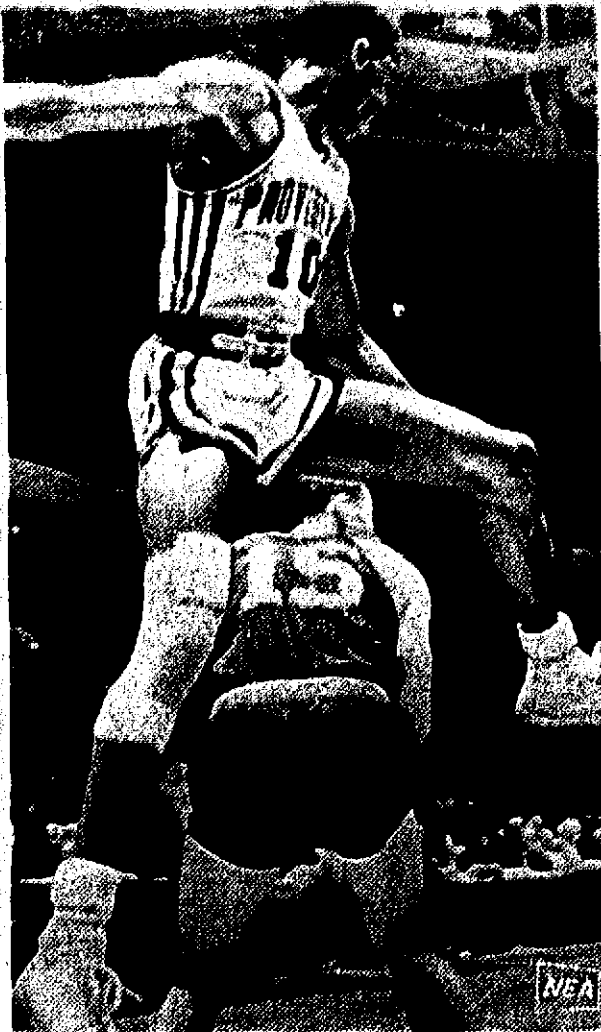

Blevins took the Sr. Girls game, defeating the Scrappers 42-33. Dot Steed hit for 15 points followed by Lou Turnage and Janice Hugg with 13 points each for Blevins. Jane Toland, with 19 points, was high for Nashville.

and Bill Lee all had 9 points for Hope. Ronnie Massanelli had four, and Tim White and Charles Rateliff had two each. Andy McDaniel sank 12 and Bobby Johnson 11 to pace the Hornets.

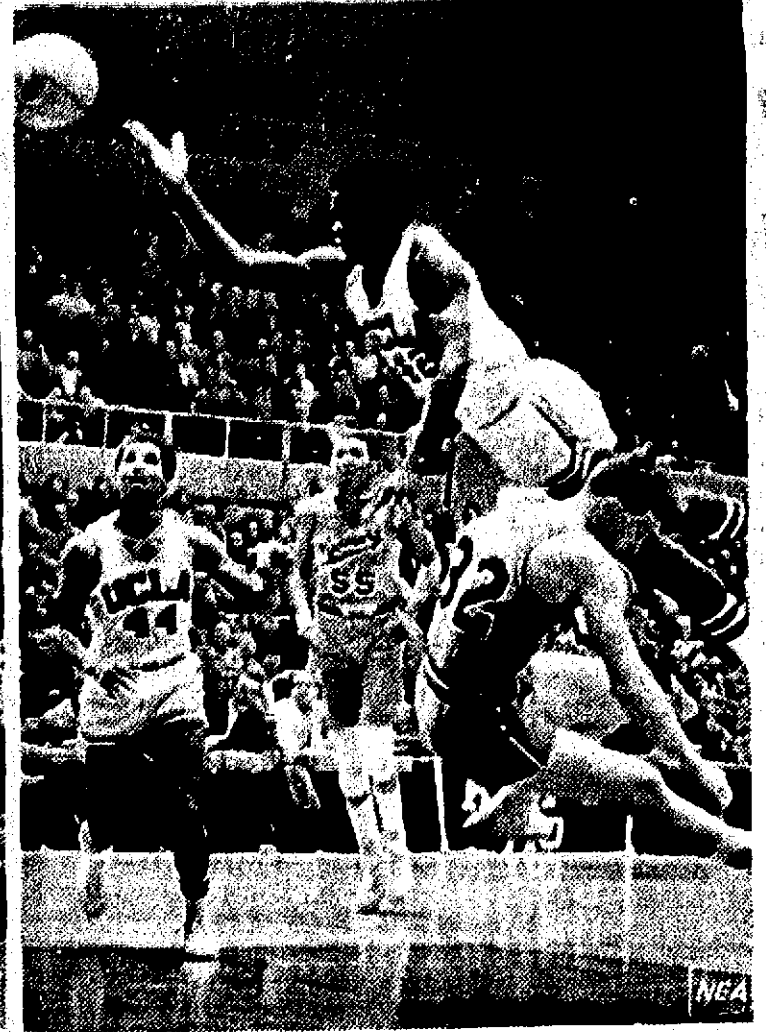

Tomorrow night the Bobcats and the "B" Lizards will travel to El Dorado High for two games with the Wildcats. El Dorado, presently ranked No. 4 in the state, won an earlier meeting 87-53 in Hope. Tipoff time is set for 6:30 p.m.

BASKETBALL ON THE MOON?—These players came back to earth shortly after the pictures were taken at three different holiday basketball tournaments. Yale's Ed Goldstone (L) drives for Georgia's basket in Triangle Classic at Raleigh, N.C. At center, Temple's Joe Cromer (15) wishes people would get off his back, particularly Alphonse Haynes of Providence, during Quaker City Tournament at Philadelphia. At right, Wyoming's Mike Eberle (32) seems to think he's playing in the Los Angeles Football Classic as he slips and appears to be tackling UCLA's Lucius Allen. And now, the long grind ahead to build national prestige.

Magnolia Is Winner Over Hope

By RALPH ROUNTON
Star Sports Writer

Cold from the two-week holiday break, the Hope Bobcats showed it Friday night at Jones Field House, by being handled 56-49 at the hands of the Magnolia Panthers in a 4-AA ball game, the first for each team.

The Bobcats lacked a balanced scoring attack as well as a penetrating defense, and trailed for the entire game. Richard Sallee made Hope's first basket with 2:45 left in the first quarter, and the Cats once got as close as 12-10, before watching that fall to an 18-10 deficit at the quarter.

Had it not been for Dwight Galloway, who was really the sunshine of a cold night, the Bobcats might have collapsed without scoring in the second quarter. As it were, Galloway jumped, hooked, laid, and twisted for eight big points in those eight minutes, and Magnolia could only bow at a 28-22 lead at the half.

The woes came in the third quarter, though, as Hope went five whole minutes without a single point, and had only four for the entire period. Meanwhile the Panthers were breezing at the heels of guard Ricky Murphy, who popped four buckets in a row as Magnolia built up a 43-20 margin with one quarter still to be played.

Playing with confidence now, the Panthers quickly built up a 51-31 lead with three minutes to be ticked off. At this point Coach Connie Miloch put in his reserves, and the Bobcats went wild, hitting everything from everywhere. Not enough time remained, though, but the Cats played it to the end, even with a pair of free throws by Wayne Norvell after the final horn had gone off.

Galloway sacked 16 to lead the Bobcats, while Richard Sallee tallied 12. Next with 8 points was Ricky Putman, and John Hanley had 5. To round it out, Monte Garner rapped in four and both Larry East and Wayne Norvell had two. Mac Dodson snatched 14 points and Todd Landes 13 to pace Magnolia.

Although they knew that they had had a fight for it, the heavily favored Magnolia Jr. Boys eased by the Hope Bobkittens 53-37 in the preliminary contest.

The Bobkittens battled it right out to the finish, and came as close as six points from the leaders at 41-35 early in the final period. But the taller and more experienced Panther Cubs got away with an intense full-court press that forced the Bobkittens into floor errors at the end. However, Bobkittens Coach Gaylord Solomon was very satisfied with the team's offensive effort, although, as he put it, "We didn't play much defense."

Improving with every game, the Kittens' Big Three, the front line of which all are 8th graders, once again paced the scoring. Center Lynn Norton earned 13 points for highest honors, while Tim White rimmed 8 and Bill Lee 4. Parker Powell and Ronnie Massanelli each also contributed four points, and Charles Rateliff and Buddy Ingram 24 in two apiece. Guard Ingram, only a seventh grader, injured his knee and is now out for the year with a cast on his knee, and his loss will hurt the Bobkittens' depth in the back court. Pat Schultz threw in 18 and Alrik Phillips added 10 to lead Magnolia.

Houston in Showdown With UCLA

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

North Carolina, Kentucky and Tennessee, fighting for attention and clawing their way up the ladder of national college basketball rankings, all have one big plus going for them.

They don't play UCLA. No, so Houston. The second-ranked Cougars face a Jan. 20 showdown with the awesome Bruins in the Houston Astrodome, a game already assured of the largest attendance in college basketball history. Over 48,000 tickets already have been sold.

The Cougars warmed up for that one with a 118-81 rout of Centenary Saturday, with All-American Elvin Hayes tossing in 40 points. It was Houston's 15th straight in an unbeaten season.

But UCLA, dominating the game as perhaps no team has ever done before, methodically routed Washington 93-65. Lew Alcindor scored 38 for the Bruins, who ran their unbeaten string to 44 straight.

North Carolina, No. 3, Kentucky, No. 5, and Tennessee, No. 6, also won, Kentucky with an impressive 94-78 triumph over fourth-ranked Vanderbilt.

North Carolina edged a tough Duke team 75-72 while Tennessee humbled Alabama 82-63.

St. Bonaventure, No. 9, romped over Niagara 101-72, holding Niagara's Calvin Murphy to 25 points, his lowest of the season. It was unbeaten St. Bonaventure's 11th straight.

New Mexico, ranked 10th, also remained unbeaten, scoring its 13th straight, 71-64 over a tough New Mexico State team.

But Oklahoma City, ranked No. 8 and previously unbeaten, suffered a stunning 74-63 reversal at the hands of Portland, which hadn't won in 17 previous games. Rich Travis, the No. 3 scorer in the nation, was held to eight points.

Pete Maravich, the country's leader, had 32 for Louisiana State, but the Tigers lost to Florida 97-90.

"We've been getting great effort and poise," New Mexico Coach Bob King said after the Lobos' victory. "When you get effort you can beat anybody."

But the way UCLA, Houston and Kentucky did it, it seemed effortless.

UCLA, the defending national champion, wrecked Washington's man-to-man defense and broke the game open in the first half when it held the Huskies without a field goal for seven minutes.

Sprint by Bobby Hull Is Non-Stop

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Bobby Hull's non-stop sprint in the National Hockey League's all-time goal-scoring race has carried the Chicago Black Hawks' superstar past another checkpoint: And he's still in too much of a hurry to look back.

"I'll just have to take them as they come," Hull said Sunday night after his 400th and 401st career goals helped Chicago's East Division leaders beat second-place Boston 4-2.

Hull became the fourth 400-goal scorer in NHL history—joining Detroit's Gordie Howe, Montreal's Jean Beliveau and ex-Canadian star Maurice Richard—with a 45-foot blast midway in the second period. He started on the way to 500 with an open-net tally in the final minute.

"I'll keep playing and scoring, I hope, until the day comes when I'm plagued with injuries and no longer a help to the team," he said.

Three goals by Gerry Ehman helped Oakland snap an 11-game winless streak with a 6-0 victory over skidding Los Angeles; Jean Ratelle's hat trick led New York past Toronto 6-2; Montreal nipped Detroit 4-3 on Gilles Tremblay's third period goal and Philadelphia's West Division front-runners topped Pittsburgh 3-1 in other Sunday games.

Stan Mikita fired Chicago's go-ahead goal in the third period and Hull provided insurance with his 31st tally of the season as the Hawks moved three points up on Boston in the East.

Oakland goalie Charlie Hodge stopped 26 shots in blanking the Kings, who have lost eight in a row. Ehman scored once in the first period and twice in the third for the Seals' first hat trick.

Ratelle registered his first NHL hat trick inside five minutes in the second period after first period tallies by Reg Fleming, Orland Kurtenbach and Phil Goyette staked the Rangers to a 3-0 lead.

Tremblay snapped a 3-3 tie early in the third period, sending the Canadiens past the Red Wings, who fell into the East cellar—one point behind Montreal and New York.

North and South Games Confused

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The South beat the North and then the North defeated the South. Confused? Well you have a right to be. But that's what happened Saturday as the college football season officially came to a close.

In Mobile, Ala., where the Senior Bowl was played, the South, sparked by Alabama's All-American end Dennis Homan and Florida States' Kim Hammond, tripped the North 34-21. In sunny Honolulu, the North All-Stars paced by another All-American, Larry Csonka of Syracuse, crushed the South, 50-6.

Dixie teams did not fare well in all the postseason games, dropping nine of 11 contests—Louisiana State won the other, 20-13 over Wyoming in the Sugar Bowl—but Tennessee's All-American center Bob Johnson felt that "the South's victory in the Senior Bowl did a lot to square things up."

Johnson helped bolster the South's prestige with his great blocking for the passing of Hammond and the running of Tuane's Bob Duhon.

The South led only 17-14 at the half, but broke the game open in the second half. Hammond tossed two touchdown passes while Homan set up three scores and caught a TD pass for another.

In the Hula Bowl, Csonka, named the top back of the game by a unanimous vote, rushed for 119 yards in 20 carries and scored one touchdown. And the North defense led by Oregon State's Harry Gunner completely stopped the South offense headed by Heisman Award winner Gary Beban of UCLA.

"Maybe we coaches take this game too seriously and make it too complex. We only practiced four hours for this game," said winning Coach Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State after the victory.

Hull Slams 400th Goal of Career

By JOE MOOSHIL

Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — The scoreboard clock said it was 9:47 of the second period and the clock designating the time of day said it was 8:41 p.m. when Bobby Hull slammed home the 400th goal of his career.

The standing room only crowd of more than 17,000 let off a thunderous roar. Hull skated off the ice, but they kept cheering until the clock struck 8:45 p.m., when Bobby finally came off the Chicago Black Hawk bench.

Hull skated to the end of the rink and handed the puck to his wife, Joan.

"She's been a part of a lot of them," said Hull, who was reflecting on other momentous goals, "and I wanted her to be a part of this one."

What now Robert Marvin Hull? "Oh, I don't know," said the 29-year-old Hull, who also scored his 401st goal on an open net to give the first-place Black Hawks a 4-2 victory over Boston and a three-point lead in the East Division of the National Hockey League.

"I'll just have to take them as they come," said Hull. "No, I have no fear of becoming obsessed with records. I'm not that hungry.

"Scoring is great but it's no fun when you're not winning," continued Hull. "I was scoring early in the season when we lost our first six games. Believe me, that didn't make for a happy dressing room."

"I'll keep playing and scoring, I hope, until the day comes when I'm plagued with injuries and no longer a help to the team. When that day comes, I'll know what to do."

Royals Roll to Victory Over 76ers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Technical and technique—they cost Alex Hannum and the Philadelphia 76ers.

The technicals—two fouls called almost simultaneously on the 76ers coach—cost Hannum a chance to see all of Sunday's National Basketball Association game at Cincinnati as he was ejected with 3:38 left in the third-quarter for protesting a personal foul call.

The technique—run and shoot by Cincinnati—cost the 76ers a chance to increase their Eastern Division lead over the Boston Celtics to four games as the Royals rolled to a 134-118 victory.

There was no other action in the NBA. In the American Basketball Association, Dallas topped New Orleans 113-101, Minnesota edged Indiana 109-106, and New Jersey walloped Anaheim 121-102.

Cincinnati really ran and shot in the fourth quarter—maybe it was just as well for Hannum's nerves that he wasn't around—when they outscored the 76ers 44-32 by hitting on 61 per cent of their field goal attempts, 16 of 26.

Jerry Lucas led Cincinnati with 34 points and a game-high 27 rebounds. Oscar Robertson added 30 points and Connie Dierckx 26. Wilt Chamberlain paced Philadelphia with 36 points and 25 rebounds.

Cincy Powell packed one big Dallas scoring punch with 35 points, and John Beasley added 27. Doug Moe topped New Orleans with 22.

Minnesota appeared to have an easy victory, leading by 17 points with four minutes left. However, Indiana, with Fred Lewis scoring 12 of his 31 points in two minutes including two three-point goals, cut the lead to 103-101 with a minute left. Les Hunter, Don Freeman and Mel Daniels then each sank two foul shots to win it for the Muskies.

Hunter scored 33 points and Daniels 22 for Minnesota, which increased its Eastern Division lead over the Pittsburgh to one game. Roger Brown was high for Indiana with 32.

New Jersey built a 13-point lead in the third period behind the shooting of Mel Nowell, who got 29 points, and Tony Jackson, who finished with 27, and went on to snap Anaheim's five-game winning streak at home. Ben Warley led Anaheim with 23.

In Saturday's games, Indiana beat Houston 103-97 and Dallas downed Kentucky 108-96 while Baltimore edged Los Angeles 130-127 in overtime. New York drubbed Detroit 118-101, Philadelphia whipped St. Louis 107-96, San Francisco upset Boston 107-101, Seattle trounced San Diego 122-104 and Chicago defeated Cincinnati 114-109.

Rams Took the Game Seriously

MIAMI (AP) — Coach George Allen of the Los Angeles Rams said, "We took this game as seriously as any game we've played," and the Rams reflected it by drubbing the Cleveland Browns 30-6 in the National Football League Playoff Bowl in the Orange Bowl Sunday.

"We wanted to let the world know this is as good a team as any playing next week," Allen said, referring to the Super Bowl game between the Green Bay Packers and Oakland Raiders in the same stadium next Sunday.

Quarterback Roman Gabriel of the Rams, voted the Most Valuable Player in the game, expressed his pleasure to a nationwide television audience when he said:

"I want to thank everybody in Miami for making our stay here so enjoyable."

He didn't mention the Browns, but he might have until the last quarter and scored with just over four minutes left in the game.

"I hear everybody talk about nobody getting up for this game," said David "Deacon" Jones, 260-pound defensive end for the Rams. "Let me tell you these guys have a lot of pride."

Allen said his whole club had incentive despite distractions from the Teamsters Union, pre-draft rumors and a visit to a dog track.

"We got a lot of calls and criticisms for working twice," he said of Wednesday's unprecedented double practice session. "But that's the only way to play."

A Cleveland Browns' official, who asked not to be identified, blamed the union talk for part of his team's listless first half.

The National Football League Players' Association met Saturday night in Hollywood and agreed to register as a union with the U.S. Department of Labor.

Art Modell, president of the Browns, admitted that the meeting "didn't help" the Browns' play, and said a personnel shakeup was ahead.

Gabriel threw 21 yards to Bernie Casey and two yards to Billy Truax for first-half touchdowns and hit Tommy Mason for 43 yards to set up a third in the final period on Willie Ellison's nine-yard run.

Bruce Gossett, breaking the field goal records for the game, booted three from 41, 46 and 19 yards and added three conversions for a 12-point production.

The Rams' "Fearsome Foursome" front line defense of Deacon Jones, Merlin Olsen, Roger Brown and Lamar Lundy, let the Browns get away only once.

This was in the last period when Cleveland moved 81 yards to a touchdown scored by LeRoy Kelly from two yards out. The big play was a 34-yard pass from Gary Lane to Paul Warfield.

Gabriel said the Rams came to Miami for some fun in the sun—it was 80 degrees at game time—as well as the $1,200 each winning player received.

"Next year we won't be here for this game," Gabriel said. "We'll be No. 1."

The crowd of 37,102 was far below last year's 65,569.

Group Wants to Dam the Buffalo

MARSHALL, Ark. (AP) — North Arkansas residents who wanted to dam the Buffalo River, a group that has remained silent for the most part since Arkansas congressmen introduced legislation to make the Buffalo a national river, apparently are planning a fight to block the project.

James R. Tudor of Marshall, who heads the Buffalo River Improvement Association, said Saturday that about 150 landowners and businessmen from Newton and Searcy counties met here Friday night to talk about closing the river to tourists.

"They were all enthusiastic to keep the park from going in," Tudor said. "It's strongly opposed by all the property owners up and down the river and about 98 per cent of the population of the two counties. They claim they are going to stop it."

"That river has been free to the public all the time. There's been a little trouble sometime, but nothing to amount to anything. Now the very ones who have used it are trying to take it away from the property owners."

"We've forgotten the dams. There's no possibility of getting that now. We're just trying now to save the Buffalo. We don't want a park on the thing."

Tudor contends the river isn't a navigable stream, so property owners along it own the riverbed and may control the use of the river.

Dr. Nell Compton of Bentonville, president of the Ozarks Society, disagreed.

"Legally, they can't close it," he said. "Of course, if they wish to be disagreeable and cause inconvenience, they could. They're on the scene and able to do things as a nuisance. They've done this before—built fences and cut trees across the river."

The Ozarks Society has been fighting to keep the Buffalo a free-flowing stream and make it a national river.

Compton said the river had been navigated commercially in the past—by timbermen floating logs downstream—and that a person couldn't be found guilty of trespassing as long as he stayed within the natural banks of the river.

He added, however, that he would urge sportsmen and floaters to use the river if there were a concerted effort to close it.

Transplanted Heart Patient Doing Well

By WILLIAM C. HARRISON
AP Science Writer
STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — With the transplanted heart of a housewife sustaining him, Mike Kasperak is reported to be doing "quite well," fully conscious and responsive.

Kasperak, a 54-year-old former steelworker from nearby East Palo Alto, was dying of heart disease Saturday night when Dr. Norman E. Shumway's surgical team at Stanford University School of Medicine operated on him. The doctors cut out his heart and implanted the heart of Virginia White, a 43-year-old Santa Clara woman who died of a stroke two hours before.

By Sunday morning Kasperak was conscious and able to move. Though he couldn't talk because of a tube in his throat helping him to breathe, doctors said he recognized his family.

Shumway said his patient knew he had a donated heart beating in his chest. It was one-third the size of the enlarged one that had been discarded, but it was performing well, Shumway said.

Blood pressure, pulse and body temperature were in a reasonable range, Dr. Donald C. Harrison, a cardiologist, told a news conference at Stanford Medical Center Sunday afternoon. Harrison said the heart output—a amount of blood pumped—was 5.3 liters per minute, "almost normal for a man of Kasperak's size" when measured about 12 hours after the 4½-hour operation. The patient weighs 144 pounds.

"His cardiogram looked quite good," Dr. Harrison said.

Dr. Shumway said Kasperak was expected to stay in the hospital many months for observation.

"This kind of followup is essential to the well being of the recipient," Dr. Shumway said. "We've reached first base perhaps, but the work is only beginning."

He stressed, "There is noway at this time to term the episode a success." But he and Harrison's elation were evident.

"The critical period lasts as long as the patient lives," Dr. Shumway said, explaining that the body could reject a foreign organ months or even years after it entered the body.

Kasperak is being given drugs to suppress the rejection mechanism.

Chronic viral myocarditis, an infection that the steelworker contracted perhaps 10 years ago, had been arrested, the doctors explained. But his heart muscle continued to turn into fibrous tissue and enlarge.

He had been suffering chronic heart failure for the past two years and was forced to quit work 18 months ago. A severe episode put him in the hospital three weeks ago.

Dr. Harrison said the patient "was in severe heart failure" at the time of the transplant, to which he had consented if a suitable donor could be found.

Mrs. White, a camper and water skier, had no history of serious illness before she suffered a stroke on Friday, the day after her 22nd wedding anniversary, and lapsed into a coma.

She was kept alive by artificial respiration and drugs but the family doctor and a specialist told her husband, Bill, there was no hope.

Sports Writer Succumbs in Florida

MIAMI (AP) — Jimmy Burns, sports editor of the Miami Herald for 23 years, died Sunday at the age of 65. Doctors described the cause of death as "cerebral accident."

Burns retired from his post at the Herald in October but wrote three columns a week until his death. The last, which appeared Thursday, recapped the growth of the National Football League Playoff Bowl football game into a major event for Miami. Sunday, at the eighth edition of that game, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle asked the crowd of 37,102 to stand in tribute to Burns, whose new gold seat in the press box was empty.

James Hann Burns, born at Burns, Miss., had worked for the old Atlanta Georgian as a writer, sports editor and city editor for 17 years. He worked briefly as city editor in Daytona Beach, then came to Miami in 1913 as city editor of the Miami News.

In 1943 he became assistant city editor of the Miami Herald and the next year took over as sports editor.

Louisiana School Feels NCAA Axe

By ROY RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — With its toughest issue—the penalizing of colleges for recruiting infractions—already out of the way, the National Collegiate Athletic Association opened its 63rd annual convention here today.

The axe fell quickly, and fairly lightly, Sunday on the University of Southwestern Louisiana, the only institution found guilty of violations serious enough to rate punishment by the NCAA's committee on infractions.

The Lafayette, La., school had its basketball team placed on probation for two years for giving financial aid to three prospective players. Currently ranked No. 8 in the small-college rankings, the team will not be allowed to play in any post-season game.

In other pre-convention activity Sunday, the NCAA indicated that it may pull out of the U.S. Olympic Committee and instead concentrate on other international competition such as the World Student Games.

Such action would only be taken after the 1968 Olympics, according to Bill Reed, commissioner of the Big Ten and chairman of the NCAA's Olympic Committee.

"We have become only an appendage on the Olympic Committee," Reed said. "The committee is dominated by a coalition of international federations. We have virtually no voice in Olympic affairs. If we all dropped dead, the Olympic movement would hardly notice it."

Reed went on to say, however, that there was no question that college athletes would continue to participate in the Olympics.

"We never would do anything to hurt the Olympic movement," he said. "Our quarrel is with the U.S. Olympic Committee, not with the Olympic program."

Another speaker at a news conference was Stan Bates of Washington State, chairman of the NCAA special events committee, who said Birmingham, Ala., had asked to stage a football game to decide the national collegiate title if such a contest were approved by the NCAA.

Bates said bowl bids also had been received from Memphis, Tenn., Tampa, Fla., Phoenix, and Tucson, Ariz., San Diego, Calif., and Atlanta. He indicated, however, that these requests probably would be denied, at least for the present.

Surveyor 7 Speeding to Soft Landing

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A final direction change will be sent tonight to Surveyor 7, the last scheduled U.S. unmanned mooncraft, speeding toward a planned soft landing on rugged lunar terrain.

Flight controllers at Jet Propulsion Laboratory will adjust the path of the instrument-loaded craft in an attempt to put it 18 miles north of the crater Tycho, near the south-central edge of the lunar disc.

Surveyor is expected to be some 51,000 miles from the moon when the course alteration is made at 10:30 p.m., PST. The landing is planned for Tuesday night.

Controllers radioed an initial direction change Sunday afternoon and said the operation went well.

The course adjustments were necessary because the booster rocket that powered the 2,288-pound vehicle from Cape Kennedy, Fla., early Sunday aimed it at the crater Hipparchus, 1,000 miles north of Tycho.

U.S. space agency scientists had designated Hipparchus as the target but then decided the Tycho region was better suited to the mission's goal of sampling subsurface material. Because it is a newer crater, the soil ejected when Tycho was created has had less time to be changed by erosion.

Engineers figured it would be easier to change Surveyor's course in flight than to rebuild the booster's electronics. Earlier Surveyors have required only one course correction.

Surveyor 7's target area is only 12 miles in diameter whereas previous Surveyor target areas were 37 miles wide. A Jet Propulsion lab spokesman said the spacecraft is aimed at a "relatively smooth but still damned rough" piece of terrain.

The unmanned flight is to be the last lunar mission before man makes the trip, perhaps next year.

Previous Surveyors have investigated four primary lunar landing areas and proved them safe for manned expeditions. The Surveyor 7 mission is purely scientific.

Railroader Off Duty Is Killed

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — An off-duty railroader was killed and his wife and three children were injured early today when a freight train jumped the tracks west of here and sent an empty boxcar careening into their home, setting it afire.

Clark County sheriff's deputies said the unmanned children were trapped briefly in the burning house but were rescued by firemen arriving at the scene.

They were brought to a hospital here. Cause of the fire was not determined immediately. However, New York Central Railroad officials said the boxcar contained nothing explosive or inflammable.

The victim was identified as Jason Williams, an employee of the Erie Railroad.

Few people today can afford to limit their view of banking to savings account interest. While saving is an important and commendable practice—which we firmly endorse by paying a high interest—most people's financial needs far exceed the resources of their passbooks. Jim: "You were in New York working on your backgammon book last fall. I note that you found time to pick up a few of your 10,000 Master Points by attending a sectional event at Grossinger's."

Oswald: "Yes. Gathered 11½ points there. It was a rather small sectional but one of the most delightful I ever attended. The food and service were wonderful, and with every player stopping at the Hotel, we had no trouble getting to the playing rooms from the dining room."

"The director never seemed to feel that he had to adhere to a definite schedule, and everyone liked the general informality. I had such a good time that in line with my new policy of playing only in events where I can really enjoy myself, I plan to return there for the Regional from the 11th to the 14th of this month. Here is one of the most interesting hands from last year's sectional."

Jim: "I assume you were South. That four spade bid looks like your style."

Oswald: "Actually the dummy disappointed me. I had hoped to find four spades. The play wasn't tough in any event."

Jim: "You ruffed the heart opening and must have had quite a problem at trick two. Assume that you led a club to your jack."

Oswald: "Exactly. West was in with the king and could do nothing to beat me. Actually, he led a second heart. I ruffed in dummy, discarded my last two hearts on the ace and queen of clubs and led dummy's queen of trumps. East played his ace and put me back in dummy with a diamond. I led and ruffed a fourth club; played my king of trumps and conceded a trick to the jack."

Jim: "Simple indeed. Was your score a top?"

Oswald: "Not quite — only 11½ out of a possible 12."

Early Car Wash

It is believed that a commercial car washing began in Portland, Ore., in 1912. The automobile laundry was housed in a 60x40-foot building. Covered with mud and dirt, an automobile was driven in one end of the building and would emerge, 15 minutes later, from the other end with its brass burnished and enamel shining, for a $1.50 charge.

Postage Stamps

are still a good buy although rates have doubled in last 20 years. Washington and Franklin stamps in 1847 were first ever issued. Five-cent air mail stamp issued in 1946 marked reduction in rate from eight cents. Three-cent commemorative in 1947 reproduced first-stamp portraits along with land, sea and air methods of transporting mail starting with Pony Express.

FDR stamp issued in 1966 will get greater use with postal hike effective Jan. 7. New six-cent shows flag and White House.

THE WELL CHILD

Calcium Is Lacking In Diet Without Milk

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

A mother asks how much milk a 2-year-old child should drink every day and whether there are any vitamin tablets her daughter could take in place of milk. A growing child should get three or four full 8-ounce glasses of milk a day. She will get enough of all essential food elements, including vitamins, in a well-balanced diet that does not include any milk, with one exception—calcium. A deficiency of calcium will result in softening of the bones and poor teeth. When a child doesn't like milk as such, she should get it in the form of cheese, ice cream or other foods that are made with milk.

Q—Should my 5- and 9-year-old children see a doctor when sinus trouble first appears or wait two or three weeks to see whether it will go away?

A—There is some sinus involvement with every head cold. If your child has an acute sinusitis in which drainage from a sinus is blocked, he will have fever and severe pain and tenderness in the region of the sinus. For such a condition, he should be seen by a doctor without delay. For a head cold that hangs on for more than three weeks, it is also wise to see your doctor.

Q—Our 14-year-old son takes Dilantin every night. Is this drug habit forming? Does it have any bad side effects?

A—This drug is not habit forming. Persons with epilepsy take it all their lives. If such side effects as drowsiness occur, the dosage may have to be reduced. Stomach upsets are prevented by giving it after meals.

Q—Our 1-year-old son toes in when he walks. Can this be corrected? When would be the best time for this?

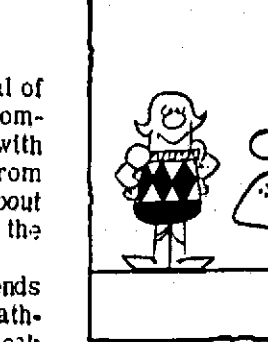

A—This condition, pigeon-toe, when slight, is an advantage because it favors a high-arched foot and straight legs. If the condition is severe publishing anti-Soviet writings abroad. The two were sentenced to hard labor camps, Sinyavsky for seven years, Daniel for five. The other defendants, poet Alexei Dobrovolsky and Vera Lashkova, are reported charged in connection with the publication of the underground magazine Phoenix 66. Sources said Miss Lashkova's involvement was limited to typing for the others.

The four are charged under a law prohibiting anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda. The maximum penalty is seven years at hard labor.

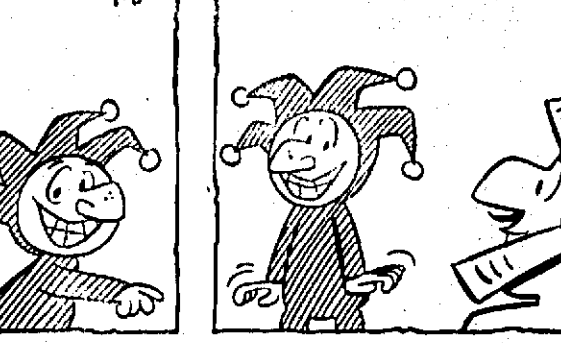

The case has stirred up the Moscow literary community. It drew international attention recently when Pavel M. Litvinoff, grandson of the late Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinoff, appealed for an open trial. More than 100 other intellectuals also petitioned key organs of authority to make the trial public.

A Couple of Items
You Read First
in This Column

A couple of developments in last week's news caught my eye because they sustained educated guesses expressed in this column some time ago.

For one thing, experts examining the plight of the big cities with chronic unemployment and mounting welfare costs now conclude the bulk of able-bodied welfare cases are unskilled "unemployables," never should have been permitted to swarm into metropolitan areas, and ought to be relocated where unskilled jobs are available.

In America we subscribe to the principle that a citizen is free to move to wherever he wants to go. But only while he is self-supporting. When he becomes a chronic charge against public charity he loses the right of self-determination and is subject to the order of the Government which supports him.

This is a common-sense view which has been expounded by your editor for several years—but it was expressed by public authorities for the first time only last week. It seems a heartless outlook, but America is discovering she has a growing hard core of people who have no concern either for themselves or their country—and so a hard decision is being forced upon Government. It must dissolve the growing slum problem of the big cities with an order: Either relocate or get off the welfare rolls.

California was faced with a similar problem when years ago she pioneered a welfare program, then had to forbid the entry of thousands who sought to live off the bounty of her free-handed Government. But the politicians welcomed the influx in the big cities because it meant more votes—and now comes the necessity of taking action that is particularly harsh because it comes so late.

The other development in last week's news had to do with air pollution. One of the suspects is the internal-combustion automobile, but when promoters began beating the drums for a revival of the electric car this column objected. A much likelier choice, I reported, was the steam automobile—whose speed and range was greater than the gasoline-combustion car when the two were competitors.

Last week advocates of the steam car broke into print for the first time. They pointed out that the steam car has overcome its main handicap—slow starting while getting up a head of steam—although the fact is this was overcome before the last Stanley steamer was built, about 1930. The people advocating revival of the Stanley steamer have, however, come up with one important development: They say modern technique permits using special liquids instead of water to generate steam. If true this would bring the old steamer back on the market.

Water was the principal cause of maintenance expense for the old Stanley steamer. Water caused scale to form in the boiler, requiring boiler replacement about every five years. A synthetic liquid eliminating scale might well be the answer.

Fire Destroys El Dorado Plant

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP)—The R. L. Pendleton Co. was destroyed by fire here Sunday and the owner of the warehouse said the building was valued at about $45,000.

R. L. Pendleton said the stock in the 101,000 square foot warehouse consisted of school, health and beauty supplies but refused to estimate the value of the merchandise destroyed. Authorities said they did not know what started the fire.

Russians Do It Differently

MOSCOW (AP)—Tape-measure traditions of Western beauty contests were criticized in the Soviet trade union publication by a woman writer who said they reduce beauty "to a simple matter of arithmetic." Irina Yermolayeva said contests should focus instead on brains and skill. She noted Russian girls in 1967 won such international titles as "Best Stewardess," "Miss Spirituality," "Miss Madame Butterfly" and "Miss Amazon."

New Heart Patient Sitting Up

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—Michael Kasperak, who received a transplanted heart Saturday night, began to bleed from the stomach and bowels today, and doctors said his condition was critical.

The surgeons would not speculate on the cause of bleeding.

By DAVID J. PAINE
Associated Press Writer
CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP)—Groote Schuur Hospital said in a medical bulletin today that Dr. Phillip Blalberg, the world's third heart transplant patient, "is no longer in the oxygen tent and will be allowed to sit up in bed today with his feet on a chair."

The 58-year-old retired dentist neared what doctors consider to be the beginning of the critical postoperative period—seven days after surgery. However, the bulletin said there were no signs yet that Blalberg's body was trying to reject the heart of Clive Haupt, 24, who died of a brain hemorrhage.

Haupt's heart was grafted into Blalberg last Tuesday by Dr. Christiaan Barnard, who also performed the landmark heart transplant operation last month on Louis Washkansky. Washkansky died of pneumonia 18 days after the operation.

No infection is evident in any of Blalberg's organs so far, the hospital said. His wife, Eileen, was to see him again today but to guard against infection she was expected to speak to him once more through a glass door.

Mrs. Blalberg said of her first visit with her husband Sunday: "He was looking too wonderful for words. He joked all the time and was very talkative." She added that he looked as healthy as he had five years ago, before his diseased heart began making him look sickly.

The dentist is now on an ordinary diet, but all his food is prepared on a special cooker and sterile utensils are used, the hospital said.

Barnard sent his congratulations to his classmate from the University of Minnesota, Dr. Norman E. Shumway, who performed the world's fourth heart transplant operation at Stanford University Saturday night.

In an interview with the National Broadcasting Corp. shown Saturday night in the United States, Barnard disclosed that arthritis in his hands may limit or even end his surgical career. He said the arthritis has been with him ever since his days as a student in America in the 1950s.

Although he takes drugs for the condition, he said, "my hands are still swollen and my joints are slightly swollen." The painful condition is a stimulus to bear down on his surgery now, Barnard said, "because I don't know when I'll be completely stopped from doing surgery as a result of the arthritis."

Commissioner of Lands to Run Again

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—State Land Commissioner Sam Jones, 55, elected to his first term in 1959, announced Saturday that he would seek a seventh two-year term.

The state Constitutional Revision Study Commission has recommended that the land commissioner's job be abolished as a constitutional office and be combined with other positions as an appointive office.

Jones said Saturday that he was sure at least that portion of the commission's report would be rejected.

"I think the legislature and the people will put that thing in the wastebasket," he said. "In my opinion, it has no merit whatsoever."

Jones, a native of Lonoke, noted that a proposed constitutional amendment to abolish his office was defeated in 1954, and said that indicated the electorate considered his administration a good one.

Veterans Groups to Ban Racism

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The regional office of the Veterans Administration says that under regulations effective Jan. 1, all real estate brokers who receive VA listings must certify twice a year that they haven't practiced racial discrimination in the sale or rental of VA properties.

The VA says that all offers for VA property must be held for three days by the brokers and that the metal "for sale" signs used on VA property will be altered to include the words "No Discrimination" and "Anyone Can Buy."

The VA also announced that all advertisements or announcements concerning VA property must certify that no discrimination is practiced in the sale of the property.

Food Shop Owner Shot by Bandit

WASHINGTON (AP)—The owner of a Washington carry-out food shop was shot in the forehead by a bandit Sunday. He survived and says he's thinking of getting out of the business.

Three bandits walked into Lawrence C. Kelly's shop and one of them put what authorities think was a .22-caliber pistol to his forehead and pulled the trigger. The slug penetrated the skin but didn't pierce the bone. It was removed at a hospital and Kelly was released.

Kelly, 23, said the robber pulled the trigger several more times—"three or four, but I wasn't counting at that point"—but the pistol failed to fire.

The robbers got away with an undetermined amount of cash.

Democrat Publisher Dies at 78

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—K. A. Engel, 78, editor and publisher of the Arkansas Democrat since 1926, died early today in his apartment after an illness of several weeks.

He had been associated with the Democrat since 1911, when he became business manager. Engel, a native of Luckenbach, Tex., began his career at the age of 17 in the business office of the San Antonio, Tex., Light, although he did some news writing.

He went to the New Orleans item in 1908 before joining the Democrat.

In 1926, he bought the co-owner Elmer E. Clarke's interest in the Democrat and later acquired the interest of the other owner, John M. Brannan.

Funeral services will be announced by Griffin-Leggett Funeral Home of Little Rock.

Survivors include three sisters, Mrs. B. H. George of New Braunfels, Tex., Mrs. Auguste Berry of Tucson, Ariz., and Miss Lydia Engel of San Antonio, Tex.; two nephews, C. S. Sleet, Snow Forecast for Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Temperatures plunged to as low as zero in Arkansas overnight and rain, sleet and snow are forecast for tonight throughout the state.

Hazardous driving warnings have not been issued, but the U. S. Weather Bureau in Little Rock said chances are likely warnings will be issued tonight. Cloudiness that spread into portions of the state this morning over the cold air mass is expected to produce the sleet and snow.

Freezing rain and sleet was occurring over much of Texas and into South Central Oklahoma this morning.

The below zero temperatures that were expected in some northern sections of the state last night did not materialize due to cloudiness and southerly winds.

However, Calico Rock recorded zero, Gilbert 4, Batesville 5, Fayetteville 7, Harrison 8 and Texarkana had the highest minimum of 16 degrees.

Maximum temperatures Sunday ranged from 14 at Blytheville to 26 at Texarkana.

There was no rainfall reported for the 24-hour period ending at 6 a.m. today.

50 Injured in Commuter Train Wreck

BOSTON (AP)—At least 50 persons were injured today in the rear-end collision of two commuter-packed rapid transit trains near Logan International Airport.

The trains were heading for Boston from East Boston and eastern suburbs with a total of some 1,500 passengers aboard.

The Metropolitan District Commission said at least 50 persons were injured. Reports from the scene said trains were operating at rush-hour intervals about one minute apart at the time of the mishap.

Passengers aboard the first train said the train apparently had trouble since it left Wonderland Station.

They said it stopped and started several times on the way to airport station.

The second train apparently veered down a steep section of the track after leaving the airport station and careened into the rear of the first train.

Kansan to Come to Arkansas

Barker will become Associate Warden at Tucker late this month. He is a retired Army colonel.

Lunch (at local cafes) and visitation with breeders of bulls will take place from 11:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

The afternoon program will begin at 1:00 p.m. and features bull test results and reports. Among those appearing on the afternoon program will be Dr. C. J. Brown, U of A Animal Husbandry; Dr. Carl Lueter, Extension Animal Husbandry; and Mr. Bittle.

The program will conclude at 2 p.m. Those attending will have plenty of time to look over the bulls. Some of the bulls will be for sale and can be purchased by dealing directly with the owners.

Possibility of Lower Tax Increase Hinted by Treasury Chief

WASHINGTON (AP)—Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler has opened the door a crack—just a little crack—to the possibility the administration will seek a tax hike lower than the 10 per cent it unsuccessfully sought in the last session of Congress.

"I am aware of some discussion of whether or not 8 per cent would be adequate or 6 per cent would be adequate," Fowler said Sunday. He added he would reserve judgement until the House Ways and Means Committee resumes hearings Jan. 22 on President Johnson's tax plans.

In the first session of the 90th Congress, Johnson's 10 per cent surcharge bill died in the committee. Fowler said his "current inclination" is that the 10 per cent originally requested "is good insurance to have."

Fowler has said a tax hike would improve the nation's financial standing and help reduce the $3.5 billion balance-of-payments deficit.

He said the Vietnam war is responsible for about $1.5 billion of the deficit but rejected a suggestion that the dollar drain would force the United States to curtail military commitments overseas.

But Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., called Sunday for the withdrawal of four of the six divisions of U.S. troops in Europe in order to reduce overseas spending and thus, he said, strengthen the dollar.

The United States is spending $1.5 billion to $2 billion a year to maintain forces in Western Europe, said Proxmire, chairman of the Joint Economic Committee.

Fowler appeared on CBS' "Face the Nation" and Proxmire spoke on Metromedia's "Opinion Washington." Nicholas Katzenbach, under-secretary of state, returned home Sunday from Europe and reported widespread support in European capitals for the U.S. campaign to stem the dollar drain.

He told newsmen that every capital he visited—in Britain, France, West Germany, Switzerland, Belgium and Italy—"approved the principles but some expressed concern about specific provisions."

"Yet there was universal approval that President Johnson is taking such strong measures," Katzenbach said.

He also reported the nations he visited expressed strong support for Johnson's 10 per cent income tax surcharge proposal as the quickest way to block inflation.

In Bonn, Germany, Johnson's program won qualified support from Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger but political opposition was developing in that country against the U.S. request that Bonn pay the full local costs of stationing American troops there.

Teachers in Agreement to Pay Hike
CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Teachers Union House of Representatives has voted 119-81 in favor of an agreement providing some $1,000 a year in pay raises and more fringe benefits.

The teachers' action Sunday called off a strike that had been threatened for Tuesday.

Schools Supt. James F. Redmond said the package will cost the school system $31 million, $19 million of which will come from the current school budget.

The additional $12 million is to be appropriated in a supplementary budget to be voted on by the school board in July.

Redmond said money for the supplementary budget must come from a proposed 15-cent raise in the property tax and a boost in the state's aid to Chicago schools.

The city's voters are to vote in June on whether they favor the property tax increase. The Illinois General Assembly must approve any increases in state aid.

Chairman Whitte assigned dates and topics to the Rotarians for January-June.

At the luncheon meeting in the Town and Country, a brief business meeting followed the meal with the president, Clyde Fouse, in charge. He welcomed the members and one guest, Bill Reinhardt. After the program, a board meeting was held and a special session was called for Monday, January 8 at 7:30 p.m. in the Chamber of Commerce office.

Town Seized by Enemy for 3 Hours

By ROBERT J. OHMAN
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP)—Viet Cong guerrillas seized a provincial capital 21 miles northwest of Saigon and 10 miles from Cambodia's border early today and held it for three hours, killing three American civilians.

The attack on Khem Cuang, capital of Hau Nghia Province, was the second raid by Communist troops on a government center close to Saigon in three days.

A government spokesman said about 700 guerrillas stormed Khem Cuang behind a barrage of several hundred mortar rounds and they "were in the streets."

The three Americans killed were members of the Agency of Civil Operations and Revolutionary Development Support—known as Cordis. Another 15 Americans were wounded. Most of those were reported to be civilians and the others military advisers to the local militia.

One officer said the 3 a.m. attack seemed chiefly aimed at the Americans' compound.

The Viet Cong pulled out at 5:50 a.m. and evaded three battalions of government troops converging on the village from their bivouac areas three to five miles away.

The guerrillas left behind 19 dead comrades and five live ones who were captured, the spokesman said. Two of the captives were wounded.

The spokesman said nine policemen were killed and 10 were wounded, at least four civilians were killed and 16 wounded, and the garrison of some 100 militiamen suffered moderate casualties, meaning they were hit hard. Ten houses also were destroyed.

The guerrillas succeeded in hanging a large Viet Cong flag on the wall of the military advisers' compound, but it was quickly at away.

Early Saturday soldiers of the 10th North Vietnamese battalion shot their way into the village of Tan Uyen 25 miles north of Saigon. In a five-hour rampage they killed eight soldiers and six civilians and wounded 35 soldiers and 11 civilians. South Vietnamese officers said 19 of the attackers were killed.

Over the weekend persistent Communist attacks on allied posts in South Vietnam's northernmost provinces led to hard fighting and heavy casualties on both sides.

Larceny '67: The Kitchen Sink Returns

By MEADER G. PATTINGTON

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Well, 1967 went back to the good old days for, in Ontario, Canada, thieves broke into a new house and stole one thing—that's right—it was the kitchen sink. Perhaps the next thing to it, the modern version, in Ithaca, N.Y., thieves broke into a house and stole an automatic dishwasher.

Police in Chicago are investigating the theft of 25,000 pounds of nuts and bolts—roughly 53 million items in all—from a parked truck. Speaking of numbers, someone stole a brick sidewalk of 3,000 bricks in Richmond, Va. A robber stole 9,319 books from the public library in Sheffield, England. And a pair of forest thieves stole just that, a forest of 500 trees in Naples, Italy.

In Teighmouth, England, a man was found guilty of stealing the green from the second hole of a local golf club.

And 3,500 pounds of concrete curbing was stolen from a concrete company located in Akron, Ohio.

Size is no safeguard for in Menton, France, night burglars walked or drove off with a six-ton derrick. The 1,000-pound copper dome was lifted from the cemetery chapel in Lugagnano, Italy. Another heavy haul was recorded when burglars got $103.01, all in pennies, from a state bank at Morrison, Tenn.

Animals really figured in the 1967 news for three polar bear hides and a zebra skin were stolen from a taxidermy firm in Seattle and a Dallas home was robbed of a stuffed giraffe weighing 100 pounds. The next thing to out-of-doors was the theft of a 400-pound wooden Indian with a broken nose and a cracked shoulder in Phoenix, Ariz.

But the bare facts were revealed when 10 women were shown of their hair which was then sold to wig makers in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. The robbers were described as a fat man, a boy about 14 and two women dressed as police-women.

Some property owners had a rough time of it in 1967: one home owner of Champaign, Ill., lost $197 plus his aluminum door. Another man, robbed of $30 in front of his home, grabbed his shotgun, found the thief, and lost the shotgun also. And a store owner discovered his store robbed, reported it to the police, went to a nearby restaurant for a cup of coffee and someone stole his hat from the rack.

Some robberies smell. Four tons of garlic were taken from a railroad freight car in New York City. Some thieves have a sweet-tooth. In the burglary of a delivery van in Denver, the loot included 19 cases of cream sandwich cookies, eight cases of crackers and pretzels, five cases of butter creams and 29 cases of assorted puffs.

Dogs again figured in the larceny news. A dog in Hillsboro, Ill., ignored the two robbers but bit the sheriff when he entered the store to make his investigation. Perhaps it was in retaliation for the only thing taken in a Syracuse, N.Y., burglary, the pet's supply of dog food. In London, a snatched money-bag contained cans of dog food placed there by the office manager.

A taxi stand owner of Barnard Castle, England, wrote an advertisement for his local newspaper, asking that whoever stole two chairs from his office please return to collect the sofa. The same night the advertisement appeared the sofa was gone. And a grocer, robbed eight times in Kansas City, Mo., offered his place for sale. Another owner of a gas station quit after his 18th robbery. He explained that he no longer could get any insurance.

Naps can be expensive. A truck driver near East Chicago, Ill., awoke from a short nap to discover the loss of 270 cartons of frozen chickens. A New Delhi businessman woke up one night to discover that everything but his underclothing had been stolen. He had to borrow clothes from a neighbor to report his loss to the police.

Some thieves in 1967 proved considerate. One burglar ransacked a home in Corpus Christi, Tex., stole $60 in cash plus costume jewelry, then emptied the ash trays, cleaned up the living-room and carried out the trash. A colleague in Grand Rapids, Mich., stole several items from the lady owner and then made up her bed for her. Another thief stole the hubcaps from a car in Casper, Wyo., then returned them later with a note telling the owner that his new car couldn't use them so he was returning them with thanks for their use.

Two times during November, someone stole the Bible from a courtroom in Buffalo, N.Y. Thieves broke into a union headquarters in Huntington, W.Va., and took only two Bibles. Twice in three weeks thieves broke into a Miami synagogue and stole decorative plaques inscribed: "Thou shalt not steal." A burglar raided three churches in Crawfordsville, Ind., one Sunday morning and took over $200 from the purses of 10 choir members. The burglar who broke into an office in Decatur, Ill., stole some money and two tickets to the annual policeman's ball.

But 1967 found many burglars on the short end of their life of crime. Police in London found one fellow who had just stolen a bag of coal hung by his trousers from a spike in the wall he attempted to climb over in his escape. A jewelry store burglar in Lyons, France, left his calling card on the floor when he fled with $14,000 worth of loot. The police had no difficulty finding him. Another recovered stolen car had $32,000 in the trunk, overlooked by the thief in Ypsilanti, Mich.

Thieves have a hard life. One in Hearn, England, told the judge he had spent 23 years and three months in jail out of 24 years of crime and that his total net gains had been only $140. Another Los Angeles drugstore bandit was so shaky that he shot himself in the hand. Three convicts fleeing the Colorado state prison collided with a police car and were promptly returned to jail. A Dallas driver, chased by police, leaped from the car and ran into a convenient building—police headquarters. A New York City amateur photographer snapped some pictures of a man looting a neighboring apartment. Police identified the photos. A television crew working in Cincinnati photographed a purse snatcher. A jury agreed it was a perfect likeness and convicted the thief.

Thieves should have been more choosy of their loot. A Niteroi, Brazil, robber in-jail. A robbery which netted only four cents in Manila, the Philippines, gave the robber four years in prison. Two men who broke into a home in Ash Green, England, spent four hours ransacking the place and left with only four cents. One-half cent per hour per man.

Two masked gunmen in Hayward, Calif., tied up a motel owner, seized $60 in cash which they placed on the couch during the binding-up procedure and roared off in their car, leaving the $60 where they had placed it. Two Albuquerque, N.M., safe crackers went to work on an open safe. They welded it shut, then couldn't open it.

Thefts are on the increase, according to the Department of Justice. Over 500,000 automobile thefts a year take place in the United States. The National Association of Insurance Companies reports 150,000 automobiles were stolen in Italy last year. And something else to brood over: On any given day, about 425,000 Americans are in jail, costing taxpayers $800 million a year to support.

Ending, as we started out, on a "good old days" note: Cattle rustling in Florida is a million-dollar-a-year business. Cattlemen have paid out more than $50,000 in rewards for their war against these rustlers.

And for really "old-time food-for-thought," police in Cheshire, England, report that a gang of thieves is staging a series of bow and arrow hold-ups. On the very edge of Sherwood Forest, in England, the sheriff of Nottingham reports that someone broke into a sporting goods store and stole $14,000 worth of bows and arrows.

OPERA STAR Grace Bumbry sings and dances in her role as Carmen at the Met, inset, but likes to get off her feet in real life behind the wheel of her $20,800 Lamborghini Miura sports car. She hopes to race the 12-cylinder, rear-engine car at Monte Carlo. It boasts a top speed of 180 miles an hour.

Just How Intelligent Is British Intelligence?

By TOM A. CULLEN
European Staff Correspondent

LONDON — (NEA) — The British Intelligence Service was once rated the world's finest, respected by America and Russia alike. Today it is considered to be bumbling and inept, and Washington security chiefs have lost confidence in their British opposite numbers.

British Intelligence is said to operate its own "Old Boy Network," choosing its staff by the color of their school ties rather than by their ability. Its screening methods have been criticized as being sloppy. Since the war, too many traitors and spies have slipped through its butter fingers, according to the current indictment.

The number of British traitors now in Soviet Russia attests to British Intelligence's failures. They include Harold atomic scientist Bruno Pontecorvo, who defected to Russia in 1950, and who now heads a space physics laboratory in Siberia. They also include Donald Maclean, the British diplomat turned spy.

Then there is George Blake, who escaped to Russia while he was serving a 42-year prison sentence for espionage in Britain.

Lastly, there is Harold (Kim) Philby, considered by many to be the most important spy the Russians ever recruited in the West. Philby managed to penetrate to the very heart of British Intelligence, holding key posts with MI-6, the counterespionage branch.

Suddenly Kim Philby has become the center of a spy scandal. He's even written a book, detailing how he operated, who he hoodwinked and who his fellow agents were, which he may not print if some Soviet agents, being held in the West, are released.

Ever since Philby defected to Russia in 1951, red-faced British Intelligence has tried to play down his importance. Philby, who once headed British Intelligence in America, was very small beer, the British public was given to understand.

But now Philby says he spied for the Russians for 30 years, which must be an all-time record for double-dealing. During this time, he not only had access to British and American defense secrets, but he was actually being groomed to head the entire British Intelligence setup.

How did Philby get away with it? Was he protected by someone higher up in government? If so, has this "higher-up" since been removed from office? These are some of the questions being asked here.

Upon their being satisfactorily answered may depend future Anglo-American cooperation in the defense field. For the United States can hardly be expected to fully share defense information with an ally in whose security it has no confidence.

As phrased here, the questions seek to elicit information on the following points concerning Philby:

1—Was Philby properly screened when he joined the British Intelligence Service in 1939? If so, why did not the screening disclose his left-wing background as a student at Cambridge University?

Philby made no bones of his left-wing sympathies at Cambridge. He joined the Communist party immediately after leaving the university in 1933 and was used as a Russian courier in Germany, where his British passport stood him in good stead. None of this information seems to have been turned up in the initial screening.

2—When Philby was chosen to head the anti-Soviet intelligence unit which MI-6 set up in 1944, why was he not submitted to a further, more rigorous screening? This was one of the most sensitive posts in the whole security setup, and Philby's promotion should have been the signal to go over his past with a fine-tooth comb. Was someone higher up protecting him?

3—Why did the British fail to heed American warnings concerning Philby? He was posted to Washington in 1949 as chief of British Intelligence in the British embassy there, his job being liaison at the highest level with the CIA, the FBI and other American security agencies.

But the Americans soon grew suspicious of him. For one thing, there were diplomats Guy Burgess and Donald Maclean, Philby's chums from his Cambridge days. Early in 1951, these two diplomats got wind that they were about to be questioned as Russian spies, and they fled to the Soviet Union. The Americans maintained that Philby tipped them off and Philby now admits that he did just that.

4—After Philby's connection with Burgess and Maclean had been established, why did British Intelligence take no action against him? Why was he allowed to quietly resign? Not only was no punitive action taken against Philby, but he was cleared after a secret Whitehall hearing.

5—When Philby was finally denounced as the mysterious "third man" who had tipped off Burgess and Maclean, why did the government rush to his defense?

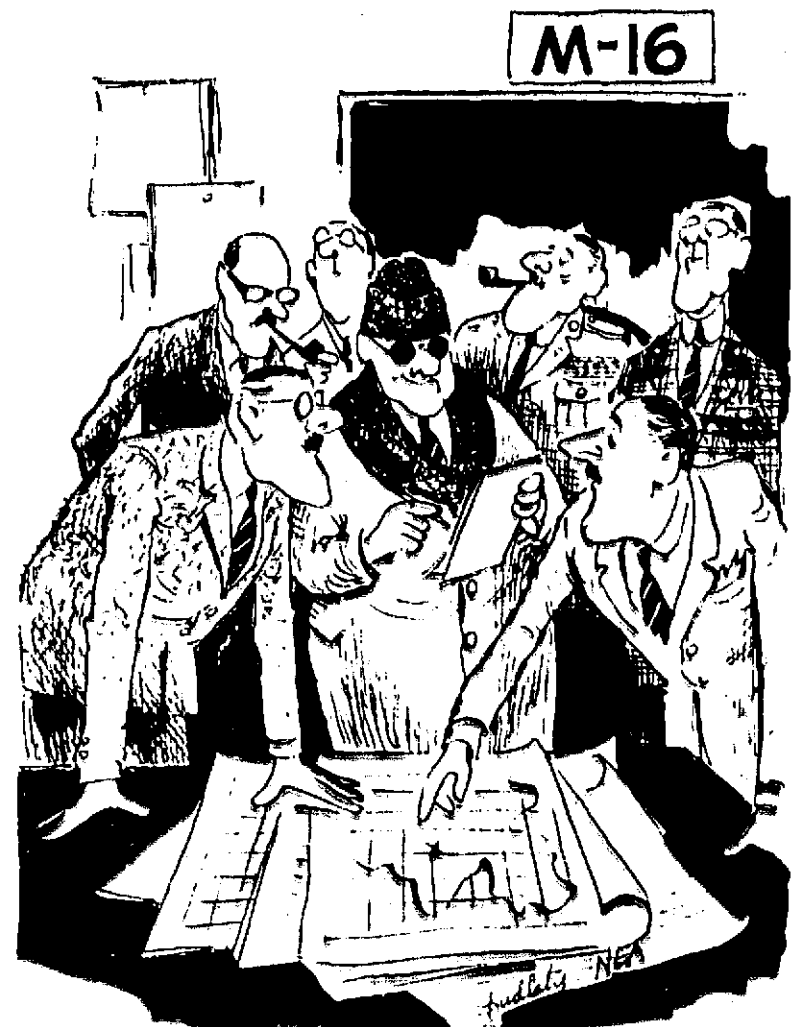

In 1955, Col. Marcus Lipton, a Labor MP, arose in the House of Commons and publicly denounced Philby as the tip-off man. This triggered an immediate reaction from the government, with Harold Macmillan, then British foreign secretary, giving Philby a complete bill of health.

After praising the spy for being able and conscientious while in government service, Macmillan declared, "I have no reason to conclude that Mr. Philby has at any time betrayed the interests of his country." The upshot was that British Intelligence put Philby back on its payroll as its man in Beirut.

6—After Philby had finally and conclusively been exposed as a Russian spy, why did not the British arrest him immediately? Why was he allowed to escape behind the Iron Curtain?

Philby was finally exposed when a Soviet intelligence officer defected to the West in 1961 and put the finger on him. Instead of recalling him from Beirut, British Intelligence sent a friend of his to Lebanon to confront him with the evidence, which Philby readily admitted.

Still the British made no move to bring him to justice. Instead, they shilly-shallied for nearly a month, giving Philby his opportunity to slip away to Russia. He was photographed by his son recently in Moscow, looking happy and relaxed—the spy who had "come out of the cold."

CRITICS CLAIM that British Intelligence has been prone to choose personnel by the color of their ties rather than by their ability, making it easy for Soviet agents to move right in.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—A few years ago, if you wanted to know anything about Pat Boone's activities you called a pleasant young man named Len Gochman, who was Pat's press agent.

Today, if you want to know anything about Len Gochman, still a pleasant young man, you can call his press agent, Len Gochman, never really the proper high-pressure, flamboyant type for press agent, decided that he really wasn't happy in his job. He wanted to be an actor.

While I was struggling with my own firm, which I opened after Pat moved to Hollywood, Len said, "I made a brochure about my publicity as a puppeteer. I spent my last penny mailing it out and got enough responses so that I could work every weekend."

He continued his publicity office, until one day he got a part in an industrial show. "I looked through the classified telephone directory, called his firm and asked if they wanted a puppet act. They called me to an audition and asked me if I could sing. I was scared to death, and it was a bad audition. But they hired me because they said I was the right type. When they hired me, they asked me what my Equity number was and I said, 'What's that?'"

Len is presently starring on comedy, "Don't Drink the Water." He is also responsible for selling you products from rain tires to shampoos, to cookies. Len is one of the most popular, and one of the busiest, commercial announcers on television. But you never see him. When he first went into commercials, he decided that it would be more beneficial if he only did voice overs. "I did 45 commercials for a deodorant. If I had been seen on camera, I would have been able to do only one."

Len's deep, soft voice is responsible for 90 per cent of his income as a performer, and gives him more job security than young actors generally have. Even if he did give his first nonindustrial performance as a star.

He was Bobby Morse's understudy on Broadway in "How To Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," but never got to go on. However, when a company was being put together to tour Australia, Len was given the lead. The opening night in Melbourne was a glittery sell-out and the star was scared to death.

After six months playing the lead, he returned to New York and was offered the New York understudy role again. "It was five months before Ron Welch, the actor who had replaced Morse, was unable to go on. I think maybe he wasn't really sick, but just nice enough to give me a chance to do the role on Broadway."

The producer saw Len, liked his interpretation, and gave him the lead in a touring company. Then he starred in a New York City Center revival of the musical, following this with the role of the leprechaun in "Finian's Rainbow." He also played the role originated by Tom Ewell in a summer stock tour of "John Loves Mary."

"When I did 'Succeed,' they said I was a Xerox of Morse. When I was in 'Finian's,' they said I copied David Wayne. When I did 'John Loves Mary,' someone said I looked like Tom Ewell. My ambition is to originate a role."

Travels With 'Charly'

By DICK KLEINER

NEA Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)

Most of "Charly" was shot in Boston and New York, but they had a few problems and so, with two days of filming left to go, they decided to wrap it up here.

Director Ralph Nelson and Cliff Robertson, who has been working to bring "Charly" to the screen for almost six years, hired a soundstage at the Goldwyn studio, collected themselves a crew, built sets and went to work.

"Charly" is the story of a dull-witted man who has an operation which advances him mentally. At one point in his renaissance, he goes off and has a fling with the hippie set. And it was this fling which Nelson was filming, a montage of Charley's adventures.

Cliff Robertson was decked out in a jazzy outfit—imported from Guyana—direct—and had a beard and long hair. A handful of mod and odd dancers were squirming in front of a plain white backdrop, with a sign reading "LOVE" flashing in yellow. Choreographer Irwin Marcus called out the steps for Cliff and his partner to do, as the playback shrieked a rock 'n' roll tune.

"Jerk," yelled Marcus, not being personal. Cliff and his girl jerked. "Monkey." They monkey d. "Skate." They skated. "Pony." They ponied.

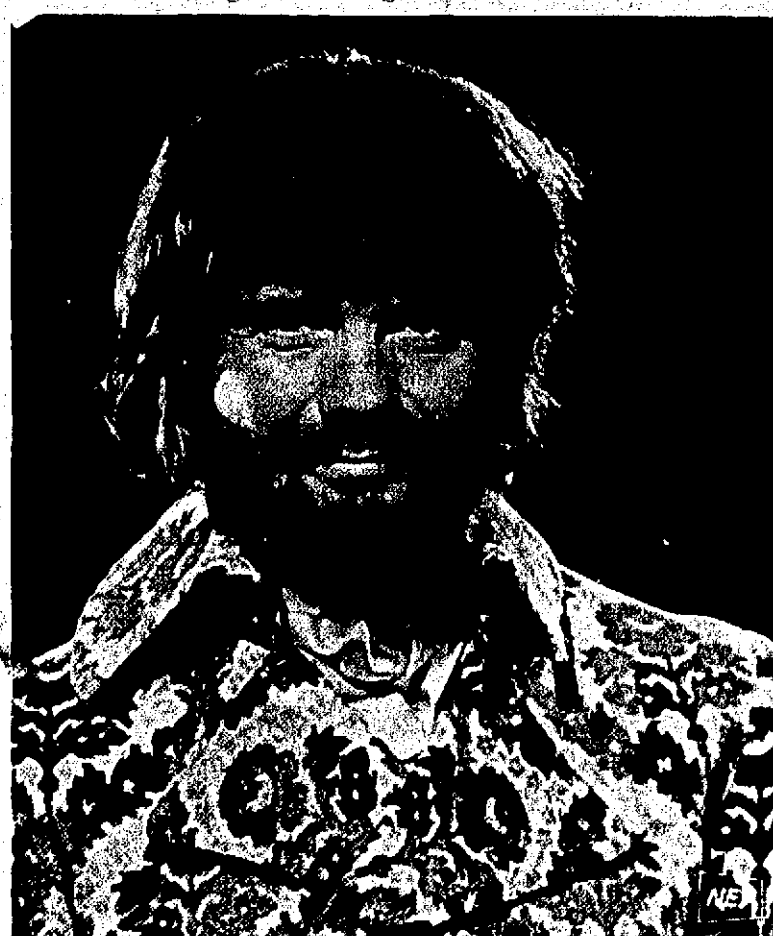

"This movie is instant education," Cliff said, during a break. "Yesterday I had to learn to ride a motorcycle. And today I'm learning how to dance. Tomorrow? Tomorrow I expect a coronary."

The cameraman was Haskell (Pete) Wexler, who did "Virginia Woolf" and "In the Heat of the Night," among

By HUGH ST. CLAIR

EXTON, Pa.—(NEA)—Almost every day, a conservatory-trained musician sits down at a keyboard here and plays a special, money-making tune on a computer 17 miles away. He doesn't swing like The Doors, but it's still an electronic happening.

The musician is Robert Giralmo, a 37-year-old composer and arranger who, during the Swinging 30s, waved the baton for a touring show called Bobby Grant's Orchestra. The 30s have long since swung, but Giralmo is plugging away in the Shocking '60s.

think that the new spelling will attract some attention—has been Cliff's property since 1961. Nelson has been involved for almost four years. The two have been trying to get it bankrolled for all that time.

"It was tough to get somebody to back it," Nelson says. "because of the subject matter. It's funny—when I first suggested 'Lilies of the Field' to producers, they said, 'Who wants to see a movie about a Negro and five nuns?' When it was a hit, they asked me if I had any more ideas like that. So I said yes, I had a story about a mentally retarded man. They threw me out of the office."

But eventually Selmur Productions had the courage to do it, and Nelson and Robertson think it may be one of '68's sleeper. It only cost a bit over $1 million—that's cheap these days—and they hope it's another film of the "Lilies" sort.

"When the story was first written," Nelson says, "the idea of surgery to correct a mentally retarded condition was almost science fiction. But when we were in Boston, we met some doctors who told us that kind of operation is closer than we think."

Nelson's last film was "Counterpoint" with Charlton Heston. He isn't happy with the way it was cut—the producer and the studio cut it after he did—and says so.

"I saw a screening in Boston," he says, "and I gnashed my teeth for an hour and then walked out. The things they had done to it! It remains a serviceable picture, but it used to have stature."

They were drawing near the end of the scene—and the filming. Cliff Robertson wasn't sure how he felt about it ending.

"After you've worked on a picture for almost six years," he says, "having it finish is like seeing your child grow up and leave home."

business shortly after World War II, Giralmo has developed a highly specialized occupation—preparing music for publication. He and his staff of five take raw rough compositions from music publishers, lay them out in an easy-to-follow and visually appealing format, and prepare this format for reproduction and zap. It's time for science-fiction music.

Using the keyboard-equipped terminal, Giralmo can send the note composition of a particular music score right to the computer. The computer then races through the formerly tedious task of formatting music so that it is both easy to read and play.

"By applying a formula which I wrote," says Giralmo, who used to be able to play every instrument in his orchestra, "the computer can space notes on a line of music in relation to the over-all density of notes in the composition. This type of spacing makes the music easy to understand and follow."

"I used to figure out note-spacing with a desk calculator, including his wife, who has a specialty of her own—she teaches piano teachers how to teach an extended course which she wrote. And, if computers ever make the psychedelic sound scene, Giralmo may become a chore which the computer does in a few seconds."

Information to be processed is sent to an IBM Quiktran

computer in Philadelphia by typing it on the keyboard (the terminal is located right beside Giralmo's desk), and the instructions for the desired note format are printed out there.

In addition to being a band-leader, composer and arranger, Giralmo once managed a singing group, a quintet called the Velvetones, which, among other things, did quite a few radio commercials. If they had had a name like Flower Pot and the Had Seeds they'd probably still be around today.

When he isn't managing his business and talking long-distance to a computer, Exton's music man likes to compose and score his own works. His output is used mostly by the Bob Dylan of the plugged-in era.

TIMELY QUOTES

Let us remember that, though the great artists of the past could not change the course of history, it is only through their work that we are able to break bread with the dead, and without communion with the dead, a fully human life is impossible.

New Social Security legislation taking effect in February, with the first bigger checks arriving in March, are the largest increase in benefits in the history of the program and affect some 23.8 million Americans. Medicare and Social Security

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Publications

WASHINGTON (NEA). Only one in every four Americans at work will feel any increased Social Security bite in 1968 as result of major 1967 revisions in the law.

That does not mean that the many other millions of workers paying into Social Security coffers will be relieved indefinitely from paying a share of the higher cost of benefits due to be lifted an average of 13 per cent for nearly 24 million recipients with their March 2 checks.

The stiffer tax load for everybody else has simply been postponed for a year.

In 1969 more than 80 million working Americans will get hit harder in their pay checks as Social Security tax deductions rise. (The actual work force is not much above 72 million, but enough people are on and off the employment rolls in the short run, like Christmas workers, to account for the higher total.)

Here is why roughly one in four Americans on the job will get nicked a bit more in 1968: The new law raises from than $6,600 in 1968 will pay more than they did in 1967—but nobody else will.

In 1969 this will happen: The earnings base from which the tax will be drawn will hold at the $7,800 level—as it will indefinitely thereafter. But the Social Security TAX RATE will rise from the present 4.4 per cent to 4.8 per cent. From that point on, every working individual will feel the bigger bite.

That will not be the end of it. Five times more between 1971 and 1987, the Social Security TAX RATE will rise, until it reaches a scheduled peak of 5.9 per cent.

The last four of these upward changes will come as result of slight increases in the charges for the Medicare portion of Social Security—which even in 1987 will still represent only about a sixth of the total Social Security tax.

All through this rising cycle.

For the self-employed, the 1967 figure was $422.40, the 1968 figure $499.20, and the 1969 figure $616.20.

Clearly the millions who on March 2 will start getting fatter checks are not getting bread from the sky. Working taxpayers are going to bear the added load.

Many of the younger ones, seeing retirement and other problems far off in the future, are bound to complain. For a good while they will be carrying the freight for many older people, including some who put little or nothing into the Social Security reserve.

Social Security authorities have some arguments, worth a later look, as to why the system is nevertheless a pretty good thing for today's millions of young workers who will be paying the heavier Social Security taxes for a long time to come.

It is better to try to bear the ills we have, than to anticipate those which may never come. —Rochefoucauld said it.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Does it make sense in this day and age to give a boy a gun for Christmas?

Urban sprawl and the shrinkage of free hunting lands, stringent gun laws and Dad's preoccupation with corporate one-upmanship no doubt cast a pall over the traditional gift idea of a little gun for the adolescent. Yet in the back of every father's mind lurks the notion that there's something basic, almost a crutch in a child's mind, that he should be able to handle a gun.

There are, however, courses in gun handling and safety taught by trained instructors. The National Rifle Association covey rise. Beyond the thrill of hunting lies an even more basic fact: Kids are fascinated by guns. Did you ever know a boy who never picked up a stick and pointed it at the bemused family tabby—thereby magically transmuting himself into the white hunter and the cat into a lion?

"Bang," Junior says, snapping thumb down on extended forefinger, his hand a flintlock to ward off pirates.

Not every child would want a real gun, nor should every child have one.

Hunting, it should be noted, is not the only outlet for a yen to shoot. The claybird sports, trap and skeet, are experiencing a tremendous growth in this country.

The answer to the initial question, then, is a qualified "yes." If the boy is mature enough to obey instruction and absorb the requisite safety knowledge.

WASHINGTON (NEA). Only one in every four Americans at work will feel any increased Social Security bite in 1968 as result of major 1967 revisions in the law.

In 1969 this will happen: The earnings base from which the tax will be drawn will hold at the $7,800 level—as it will indefinitely thereafter. The last four of these upward changes will come as result of slight increases in the charges for the Medicare portion of Social Security—which even in 1987 will still represent only about a
